Men's Clothing

What an exciting time we have had during the last week, when Main street was a veritable bee hive of political enthusiasts. One would imagine they had nothing else to think of. But not so. Hundreds of men knew where to buy their winter Suits and Overcoats; they came here and were more than satisfied with their bargains. It was the biggest week's business in this Department we ever had. The coming week must excel it and here are values which cap the climax.

Men's Suits at $10 to $15

For these figures we have a handsome line of Cheviots, in blue, black, brown and fancy mixtures, as well as substantial Scotch Tweeds in double-breasted, square-cut and single-breasted styles. All of the latest style, well made and finely tailored. We guarantee a perfect fit and know each garment will prove satisfactory.

Men's Overcoats at $10.00

Good heavy Kerseys, absolutely unmatched at the price. You will be asked $12 for similar ones elsewhere.

At $15.00

We have some beauties in black and blue, with Silk Velvet Collar, raw edge and fly front. You never bought their equal for less than $20. That's sure.

Men's Ulsters at $13.50

Black Irish Frieze, fancy Plaid lining, Sateen yoke, strapped seams, fully equal to any $18 Coat in town

At $15.00

WHAT THE POPS DID

SENATOR BUTLER'S ADDRESS

He Thinks the Rank and File Will Throw McKinley as Cleveland Was Thrown by His Party.

Washington, Nov. 7.—Senator Butler has issued the following: "To the people of the United States: In the remarkable campaign just closed the people's party was the only party that supported solidly and undivided the great and vital issues represented in the candidacy of Mr. Bryan. This was natural, for the people's party came into existence to bring to the front and press to victory the principles of Lincoln and Jefferson already long discarded by the two old parties. The money power, feeling reasonably sure of its control and domination of the leaders and controlling influences of the republican party in 1892 gave its support to the candidacy of Cleveland for the special purpose of having him, through the use of patronage and otherwise, crush out the silver sentiment in the South and make the leaders of that party as completely subservient as those in the republican party. To accomplish this purpose, four cabinet ministers were selected from the South and an unusually large amount of patronage was used on political leaders to the same end.

"It will be remembered that Mr. Cleveland demanded that democratic senators and congressmen give a decisive vote in the interests of the gold standard before he would give out postoffices. This deep laid plan might have succeeded had not the people's party at this juncture sprung into existence, exposed the plot, stood in the breach and appealed to the patriotic hosts of both sides to check the scheme of the people's despoilers and rally to a common defense.

principles now squarely forced to the front, yet only a small percent would in this campaign support them because they found them under the democratic banner.

"Had it not been for the prejudice against the democratic name, as well as want of confidence in democratic promises, for which it must be frankly admitted past experience furnishes ample ground, a majority of the voters of the country, in spite of the tremendous and unparalleled forces put forward by the republican managers, would have cast their votes for financial reform and American independence. The people's party, with high patriotism and unselfish devotion to principle greater than ever exhibited by any other party, stepped outside of its organization to throw its 2,000,000 votes solidly for Bryan. Had not more than this number of those who called themselves democrats in 1892 given their support to McKinley, the cause of the people and American principles would have triumphed this year. This class of democrats will surely support the party of monopolies in the future. Their places in the ranks of the reform hosts must be taken by patriotic republicans. In fact, Bryan would have been elected in this contest had even 25,000 silver republicans come to his rescue.

"The election of McKinley and the triumph of the gold standard does not express the desires and sentiments of the people. The majority oppose the policy for which he stands and will vote whenever opportunity is presented for a proper alignment. The remarkable and brilliant campaign of William J. Bryan would have aligned these forces and marched them to a triumphant victory if any candidate or leader in America could have done so under the democratic banner.

"The administration of McKinley cannot bring prosperity to the American people, mills cannot be kept open, idle labor given employment and general prosperity restored and maintained until the wealth producers receive fair returns for their labor and are thus purchased. The gold standard and monopoly rule, to the continuation of which Mr. McKinley stands pledged, means four more years of falling prices, four more years of lockouts and strikes, four more years of reduced wages and idle labor.

"This will cause the patriotic rank and file of the republican party to condemn and repudiate McKinleyism as the patriotic rank and file of the democratic party has condemned and repudiated Clevelandism. I cannot believe otherwise, for I have no less confidence in the patriotism of this class of the republicans than the rank and file of the democratic party has already demonstrated. Therefore, a large per cent, who, though not fooled by ambiguous pleas of honest money and promised prosperity, yet who would not in this campaign fight under the democratic banner, will surely join hands with the majority of the American voters outside of the old parties and overthrow government trusts and monopolies run in the interest of foreign capitalists.

"The people's party has made this possible; in fact inevitable. The position of the people's party in this great contest has convinced every patriotic American that the party can be trusted to stand for the principles of good government and the interests of the people under any and all circumstances. Therefore, the people's party will be the nucleus around which the patriotic hosts must and will gather to redeem the betrayed republic and restore prosperity to an oppressed and outraged people.

(Signed) "Marion Butler, Chairman People's Party National Committee."

Curious Stories of Whist.

From London Tit-Bits.
Lord Silgo was at a card table when the news was brought to him that his magnificent residence was on fire. He stopped only a moment to ascertain whether or not his presence could be of material service on the scene of the conflagration. Finding that it would not, he calmly took up the hand which had been dealt him while he was talking with the messenger, and resumed play.

A case where a single game of whist was responsible for a good deal was that in which G. H. Drummond of the famous Chasing Cross banking house of London lost £25,000 at a single sitting to Beau Brummel. When his loss became known to Drummond's partners they decided that a gambler was an undesirable associate in a business requiring for prosperity the confidence of the public in its managers. They therefore forced him to retire.

What is known as a Yarborough hand in whist is one in which there is no card above a nine spot. The name given to this hand is derived from a certain Lord Yarborough, who used to offer the attractive, but very safe wager £1,000 to £1 that a hand of this sort would not be dealt. He may have worked out the chances or he may not, but the fact is, such a hand occurs only once in 1,827 rounds. It is said that Yarborough won his wager many thousand times.

At the Union club of Boulogne some years ago the dealer dealt the 26 red cards to himself and partner, and all the black cards to their opponents. When we come to realize that the odds against such a round of hands are eight billion to one, we must admit this was a very remarkable deal.

Metternich, the great Austrian statesman, owed to a single game of whist the greatest sorrow of his life. One evening, while he was engaged in his favorite game, an express arrived with dispatches from Galicia. He placed the papers on the mantelpiece and went on playing all that night and far into the morning. When the party broke up he was horrified to learn that upon his immediate reply to the dispatches depended the fate of 2,000 innocent persons. Had Metternich loved whist less passionately, history had never recorded the infamous Galician massacre.

SILVER'S GOOD FIGHT

Yellowstone County Rells Up a Nice File of Bryan Vots.

RETURNS ARE ABOUT ALL IN

A Coolness Is Apparent Among Some of the Leaders of the McKinley Forces—Cold Weather—Cattle Shipments Cease.

Special Correspondence of the Standard.

Billings, Nov. 6.—The political situation has here, as elsewhere, been the all-absorbing topic for the last 90 days, but that having been settled to the satisfaction of at least some of our citizens, other matters will now come up for consideration. The result of the election in Yellowstone county must be a source of gratification to the friends of silver. That county, so largely dependent upon the sheep industry was not blinded to the real issue of the campaign by the fuss and fury of those who sought to divert them, by false cries, shows that our people are of more than ordinary intelligence. The silver republicans contributed materially to the gratifying result, and though the McKinley organ here professes to have them "on its list" for future dire penalties, the gentlemen who worked for bimetalism do not appear to be greatly worried over the result.

Editor Becker, it is said, will be an applicant for a diplomatic position under the new administration, as a reward for his loyalty to the g. o. p. The Gazette having been the first paper in the state to recant the silver "heresy" and hoist the McKinley and Hobart banner at its masthead. Indeed the rumor having obtained currency that General Becker had the call on Col. Sam Gordon of Miles City for the position of minister to Dahomey. It was partially confirmed by the general appearing on the streets Wednesday morning wearing a high white plug hat with a gold band and a printed label announcing that he was the "pie counter minister to Dahomey." A negro valet carried the grip of the prospective diplomatist, wearing a McKinley hat and an abashed smile, in addition, of course, to the usual attire of an American citizen. A coolness has arisen between General Becker and Hon. Paul McCormick, owing to the former having gone back on an antielection promise to appoint Mr. McCormick as an attaché of his embassy.

The official count of the election will probably be made to-morrow if the returns from Musselshell arrive to-night. Several of the precincts sent in their returns sealed, but no unofficial figures so that the exact count on many of the offices is not known. However there is only one office in doubt, that of one of the county commissioners.

The weather turned cold Tuesday evening and the first fall of snow followed. There was scarcely enough however to make a showing, and today the air is cool but pleasant with the usual display of Montana sunshine. Cattle shipments are nearly over, and there has been a revival of interest in sheep business, several sales having been made.

Consulting a Lawyer.

From the Washington Star.
A lawyer of this city was waiting idly in his office for the election to pass so that people might resume their personal wrangles once more. He was so glad to see the young man who entered the room in a hesitating way that he showed it in his manner.

"This isn't much of a case," the young man said. "I don't know whether I ought to ask you to busy yourself with anything so small."

"Sometimes a very lengthy and complicated piece of litigation will arise from a very trivial circumstance," the lawyer said, hopefully.
"I don't quite see how this affair could come into court; but you will have to be the judge of any such question as that. Last summer I made the acquaintance of a very charming girl. I was away on a vacation and had nothing to do but row her around in a boat all day and teach her how to pick out the constellations at night. I told her I thought she was the loveliest being on earth, and she said she didn't care how small my salary was and—oh, well, it's the old story, and there's no use in going over all the details of a romance that flickered out. She doesn't speak to me when she meets me on the street now, and when I go to the house to call, there is never anybody at home."

"It is very sad," the lawyer said; "but I don't quite see what you want me to do about it."

"All that I desire from you for the present is information. I have heard of breach of promise cases where the law is rigorous and unswerving in maintaining feminine rights."

"The law tries to be thorough in that respect."

"Well it seems there ought to be two sides to every question. I'm not protesting against anything that tends to discourage a gay Lothario. The law is all right on that point. And I don't mean to imply that a girl hasn't a right to change her mind if she feels so disposed. But what I wanted to know is this: Can a man be considered legally and morally jilted unless the girl has returned the $75 engagement ring he gave her when they plighted their troth?"

Got Upon the Sick List.

A case showing great cunning and perseverance, as well as tolerance of much self-inflicted pain continued for many months, is worth telling. The convict was most determined and resourceful in his efforts at malingering. He began by running a piece of copper wire into his knee, by which he nearly lost his leg. He then produced a number of sores round the knee joint and kept up a great degree of swelling and inflammation by means of rag and thread pushed into the wounds. Upon the discovery of this he took to introducing lime below the skin. On other occasions a bandage was found firmly bound round the man's thigh, the result being, in medical phraseology, "extensive swelling and lividity of the thigh."

The doctor ordered his limb to be enveloped with a large piece of gutta serena so as to checkmate the prisoner's malpractice. The latter, however, by means of a strip of sheeting, and the skewer to which part of his dinner was attached, formed a tourniquet, and by it compressed his leg so much during the night as to quite neutralize the medical treatment it had received during the day. The imperturbable length detected by an order of the doctor to expose the limb outside the bedclothes to the view of the officer by day and night, and from that hour progress was toward complete recovery.

He Had Lost a Day.

The Pacific train was on its third day out when the man in the gray suit became restless. He walked up and down the car like a caged lion, grumbled because a baby cried, and made audible remarks about the weather. Finally he stopped in front of a middle-aged man and asked him to join him in a game of cards.

"Excuse me," said the stranger, "my wife has scruples about—"

"Oh, it's no matter," interrupted the uneasy man, "I'll ask someone else."

He approached a traveling man with whom he had played several games on the trip, and asked if he would join him in a game of euchre.

"I guess not," he answered. "I don't mind myself a little thing like that, but there is a minister on the car, and I'm not certain it would be advisable, anyway."

The man in the gray suit sat down at a window of the car and sulked. Presently he said to his neighbor opposite:

"This country is going to the dogs!" "Goodness alive, man, what makes you think so?" asked the surprised traveler.

"Why, look at the farm house we are passing, every man, woman and child sitting idly at the doors. There's a farmer now," as the train rushed by. "He and his men loading around, while the corn stands in the fields and the potatoes are not dug. They are all discouraged—you can tell by the way they loaf around!"

"My friend," asked the opposite man, "are you in favor of one day of rest?"

"Certainly."

"Well, as this is Sunday, it does seem as if—"

"Sunday!" roared the man in the gray suit, "that accounts for the milk in the cockpit! Here I've been trying to get up a game of euchre. Well, all I can say is that I've lost a day on this confounded trip," and he wiped the beads of perspiration from his troubled brow.
